3. Enter the employee's personal e-mail address*, his/her name, any internal (HR) code and select the charging card to be assigned to the employee.

* While it is possible that the employee's professional e-mail address may already be used for the eMSP account for public charging sessions, the split billing set-up always requires the employee's private e-mail address. Indeed, the split billing code must be linked to the home charging station registered at the employee's private address.
